

Chapter 11: Timelines and Patterns

The Issue of Free Will

The one right all humans assume we have is free will. We do not want to think that our lives are predestined. The concept of free will may have originated with the religion of the ancient Greeks. They wanted to separate man from God, so God would not interfere with man.¹ The Greeks felt that people had a right to make their own mistakes without God's "interference." They were against the Jewish religion because the Jews claimed descendency from Noah and the Jewish religion was God-centered, not man-centered. The Greeks claimed their descendency from Cane, Adams first son, and the Hebrews claimed theirs from Seth, Adams third son.

This chapter is going to present something that has never been discovered before in history. How God controls events and to the extent he does it. My one major purpose in this book is to prove the existence of God and reveal who He is in relationship to the Universe. This Chapter will definitively demonstrate that we are in a computer—the Diehold—and there is a God who controls it.

Cycles

I presented a videotape analogy in Chapter 3 to help describe our reality. I then posed the question: "How do you know you are a created being and that your existence comes from somewhere else?" The answer: You look for cycles in existence which logically should not be present if everything is supposed to be random. If you discover patterns in time, this is proof that some entity is programming events to occur at specific points in time. The entity is, of course, God—so this chapter will complete my proof that our Universe is the product of information, which exists in the Diehold, and that God is the Operating System of our Diehold.

Two Parts to My Discovery

There are two parts to the discovery. First, there are 12,068-day (33.04 years) cycles in history discernible by counting backwards from the cataclysm date of October 16, 2046. An important event occurs every 12,068 days. More often than not, the event has been or will be directly or indirectly related to the Jewish people (Table 11-1).

There are, of course, problems with determining the exact dates for many ancient events, because we just do not know the exact day an event occurred. We may know the month or the season while sometimes the year may be up for debate. The dates I provide, which are older than 970 B.C.E., derive from my calculations, from my research into Jewish history, and from the Oxford University chronology of Jewish history. Another important point to remember is that sometimes the date was when an agreement was made, or a decision on the event was made.

The second part of the discovery was to find the “holy numbers” 3,017, 6,034, 12,068, 24,136, and 36,204 showing up as the total number of days between two important dates, and which were also incorporated in measurements, such as for distances. For an example, let us say 50 years separate two important events, so $50 \times 24.136 = 1,206.8$, which is the main coded message of the Torah.

How I Discovered It

I discovered the number 12,068 embedded in the Torah in 1994. In 1989 I had already figured out the date for the next Gleissberg cycle (between September to December 2046). The Genesis story of Noah gave me the month and day when the next polar reversal will occur. Naturally, I wanted to see how old I would be when this event will happen. It turned out I will be 99.12 years old. For some reason, I decided to convert 99.12 years into days and found that it equals 36,204 days ($3 \times 12,068$)! At that point, it got personal and, I have to admit, it did startle me for a while. I had to think about what I had discovered for a couple of weeks. It did not stop my research but changed it. I started to look at the cycles in a different way. I thought that maybe other events occurred on one of these 12,068-day cycles, counting back from my then tentative polar reversal date. Table 11-1 lists the dates and events that I have found so far. My only problem was finding research books with important dates in history specifying the exact month and day. Another problem was that we do not know where to look for an important event, which God made happen on that date. Normally, you would search for the date of a battle, or signing of an important document, or a meeting, etc., or the birth date of someone who does or has done or will do something important. I also discovered that some very significant events occurred on a half-cycle and quarter-cycle of 12,068.

Cycles Through Time

The following table illustrates important events which occurred exactly on the 12,068th day or on a factor of it starting from October 16, 2046 and counting back in time. Some might say it is a coincidence, and that would be true if it was only two or three dates, but I have found over 40 important dates. I am sure there are many more, but research books with dates older than 1600 C.E. are hard to come by. I have chosen to list all the whole-cycle dates. If you find other significant events which occurred on whole-cycle or half- or quarter-cycle dates please write to the publisher with your findings.

Most of these dates are very important in history. One of the most important dates in the twentieth century was August 19, 1914. If President Wilson had declared the United States was not going to be neutral and would join the war in Europe, I believe the Germans would have sought a way to end the war early, and it would not have dragged on to September 1918. The peace treaty eventually resulted in the economic collapse of the German Republic. The Depression brought about the election of Adolf Hitler and therefore the Holocaust. The Europeans and the American Christian leadership were ashamed of what had happened to the Jews, so they voted for the creation of the State of Israel in the United Nations on November 29, 1947.

I have a difficult time believing that these events are random and merely a coincidence. They each fall on one of the cycle dates and it is not by accident. It is by design.

Related Dates

Another discovery I made was finding the number of years between two important events in history, revealed one of the sacred numbers. The following events are arranged in chronological order, from the oldest date to the present day.

1606 B.C.E.: FROM ISAAC TO THE EXODUS

I estimate that Isaac was born in 1606 B.C.E. and he was a little over 13 years old when his father was instructed by God to sacrifice him. The Exodus occurred in September 1306 B.C.E. The difference is 300 years ($300 \times 24.136 = 7,240.8 \div 12 = 603.4$).

MARCH 1306 B.C.E.: FROM MOSES TO MY EXPEDITION

In earlier Chapters I referred to the Exodus as occurring in 1306 B.C.E. I had calculated that the exact date of the Exodus was September 29, 1306 B.C.E. I had also figured out the date that Moses and Aaron cursed the waters of the Nile,² which occurred on the summer solstice, which occurs in the third week of June. Three months before this, Moses was at mount Sinai grazing his flock of sheep. He went there because the area was a savanna, at the time, with grasslands and water in the wadis.

On my first expedition to Mount Sinai we arrived at the base of Mount Sinai on November 29, 1997. If my calculations are correct, Moses had to be at Mount Sinai on March 25, 1306 B.C.E., exactly 1,206,800 days before we arrived there.
